Visual Art Series: Upside-Down-North Art Exhibition

Cape Breton University Art Gallery (Sydney) - 9:30 AM $FREE

Artist Marc Brzustowski, originally from Montreal and now a resident of Meat Cove, Cape Breton, will be holding an exhibition of his landscape paintings in the university art gallery from September 8th through to October 24. This exhibition of oil paintings demonstrates the beauty of the landscapes and the people of Meat Cove and vicinity. The show includes landscape paintings of the area during the four seasons, in addition to portraits depicting the citizens of the village, and pieces portraying their working and social lives.

Brzustowski says, "I feel that it is necessary to turn upside-down our prejudices in order to overcome the ignorance that lies at their foundation. If the exhibition makes some small contribution in that regard, it would be successful beyond the visual character I hope to give it."

Marc encourages art at an early stage in life and will be exhibiting the art work of school children from northern Cape Breton in the Reading Room adjacent to the gallery. The public is welcome to enjoy his exhibition and that of local Cape Breton artists found in Art Gallery II that will be on display during Celtic Colours.

Visual Art Series: Ossian - Fragments on Ancient Poetry

Inverness County Centre for the Arts \(Inverness\) - 1:00 PM $5 family / $3 per person

Calum Colvin's work has long been concerned with issues of Scottish identity. Colvin has used kitsch and tartanry to examine our ambiguous relationship with our own cultural heritage, in which we have lost a grip on what is real, what is reconstructed, and what is nothing but romantic nonsense. This notion of disorientation and reconstruction is literally built in to Colvin's photographs, which originate as three-dimensional sets painted over to create the illusion of a flat image.

Inverness County Centre for the Arts (Inverness) - 9:00 AM $5 family / $3 per person

Calum Colvin's work has long been concerned with issues of Scottish identity. Colvin has used kitsch and tartanry to examine our ambiguous relationship with our own cultural heritage, in which we have lost a grip on what is real, what is reconstructed, and what is nothing but romantic nonsense. This notion of disorientation and reconstruction is literally built in to Colvin's photographs, which originate as three-dimensional sets painted over to create the illusion of a flat image.

Visual Art Series: Upside-Down-North Art Exhibition

Cape Breton University Art Gallery (Sydney) - 9:30 AM $FREE

Artist Marc Brzustowski, originally from Montreal and now a resident of Meat Cove, Cape Breton, will be holding an exhibition of his landscape paintings in the university art gallery from September 8th through to October 24. This exhibition of oil paintings demonstrates the beauty of the landscapes and the people of Meat Cove and vicinity. The show includes landscape paintings of the area during the four seasons, in addition to portraits depicting the citizens of the village, and pieces portraying their working and social lives.

Brzustowski says, "I feel that it is necessary to turn upside-down our prejudices in order to overcome the ignorance that lies at their foundation. If the exhibition makes some small contribution in that regard, it would be successful beyond the visual character I hope to give it."

Marc encourages art at an early stage in life and will be exhibiting the art work of school children from northern Cape Breton in the Reading Room adjacent to the gallery. The public is welcome to enjoy his exhibition and that of local Cape Breton artists found in Art Gallery II that will be on display during Celtic Colours.

Cape Breton Island Film Series

Empire Theatres Studio 10 (Sydney) - 7:00 PM $9 ($1 goes to L'Arche Cape Breton)

Thursday, October 11, the Cape Breton Island Film Series presents an evening of films for Celtic Colours. ONCE is a heart-wrenching musical love story about an Irish street singer. Watch two people fall in love to the mesmerizing soundtrack of the songs they create, and you'll know why ONCE was the overwhelming audience favorite at the Sundance Film Festival. Before the main feature, watch the first Gaelic short film ever made in North America, FAIRE CHALUIM MHIC LEÒID (THE WAKE OF CALUM MACLEOD), and a selection student-produced Gaelic shorts filmed in Cape Breton last summer: LEAG LEUM (LEAVE ME ALONE), NACH ANN BREATHA A BHA I? (WASN'T SHE BEAUTIFUL?), and AN SNATH DEARG (THE RED THREAD). Box office opens at 6 p.m.; Films begin at 7.
